UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEVADA

2:13-CV-169 JCM (GWF)

SENTRY INSURANCE, et al.,

Plaintiff(s),

v.

ESTRELLA INSURANCE SERVICE,
INC., et al.,

Defendant(s).

ORDER

Presently before the court is defendants Estrella Insurance Service, Inc. et al.'s motion to dismiss plaintiffs Sentry Insurance et al.'s trade libel claim. (Doc. # 27). Plaintiffs responded (doc. # 30), and defendants replied (doc. # 31).

I. Background

On or about August 7, 2012, plaintiffs and defendant Estrella entered into a producer agreement. Between August 7, 2012, and December 31, 2012, there were approximately 1,200 automobile or motorcycle insurance policies underwritten by plaintiffs that were issued through and serviced by Estrella.

Plaintiffs allege that in about late 2012 defendants sold information and documents pertaining to plaintiffs' policies and insureds to Access Insurance Agency of Nevada. On January 10, 2013, plaintiffs terminated the producer agreement with Estrella.

1 In or about January through February 2013, plaintiffs authorized other insurance agencies to 2 replace Estrella to service their accounts. Plaintiffs allege that when these replacement insurance
 3 agencies contacted plaintiffs' insureds, the insureds stated that they were told by Estrella
 4 representatives that "Sentry Plaintiffs and/or insurance agencies whom Sentry Plaintiffs had assigned 5 their policies to were frauds and/or thieves." (Doc. # 24).

6 On March 18, 2013, plaintiffs filed an amended complaint alleging seven claims for relief;
 7 this motion concerns the seventh claim of relief—trade libel. Defendants bring the instant motion on 8 the basis that controlling precedent does not enable plaintiffs to proceed with this claim as it is 9 currently pleaded. Defendants argue that the plaintiffs present the elements of a defamation per se
 10 claim, but that the appropriate claim is business disparagement because the alleged statements
 11 disparage the business as a whole. (Doc. # 27). Defendants further argue that plaintiffs' business 12 disparagement claim fails because plaintiffs have not established malice or special damages.

13 II. Legal standard

14 A court may dismiss a plaintiff's complaint for "failure to state a claim upon which relief can 15 be granted." FED. R. CIV. P. 12(b)(6). A properly pled complaint must provide "[a] short and plain 16 statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief." Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2); Bell
 17 Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007). While Rule 8 does not require detailed factual
 18 allegations, it demands "more than labels and conclusions" or a "formulaic recitation of the elements 19 of a cause of action." Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009) (citation omitted).

20 "Factual allegations must be enough to rise above the speculative level." Twombly, 550 U.S.
 21 at 555. Thus, to survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual matter to 22 "state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face." Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. at 1949 (citation omitted).

23 In Iqbal, the Supreme Court clarified the two-step approach district courts are to apply when 24 considering motions to dismiss. First, the court must accept as true all well-pled factual allegations
 25 in the complaint; however, legal conclusions are not entitled to the assumption of truth. Id. at 1950.
 26 Mere recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported only by conclusory statements, do not 27 suffice. Id. at 1949.

1 Second, the court must consider whether the factual allegations in the complaint allege a 2 plausible claim for relief. Id. at 1950. A claim is facially plausible when the plaintiff's complaint 3 alleges facts that allows the court to draw a reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the 4 alleged misconduct. Id. at 1949.

5 Where the complaint does not permit the court to infer more than the mere possibility of 6 misconduct, the complaint has "alleged – but not shown – that the pleader is entitled to relief." Id.
 7 (internal quotations omitted). When the allegations in a complaint have not crossed the line from 8 conceivable to plausible, plaintiff's claim must be dismissed. Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570.

9 The Ninth Circuit addressed post-Iqbal pleading standards in Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 10 1216 (9th Cir. 2011). The Starr court stated, "First, to be entitled to the presumption of truth, 11 allegations in a complaint or counterclaim may not simply recite the elements of a cause of action, 12 but must contain sufficient allegations of underlying facts to give fair notice and to enable the 13 opposing party to defend itself effectively. Second, the factual allegations that are taken as true must 14 plausibly suggest an entitlement to relief, such that it is not unfair to require the opposing party to 15 be subjected to the expense of discovery and continued litigation." Id.

16 III. Discussion

17 Defendants argue that plaintiffs' claim for trade libel should be dismissed because it does not 18 set forth a plausible claim.<sup>1</sup> Essentially defendants contend that business disparagement is the 19 correct claim and that plaintiffs fail to allege malice or special damages required to establish this 20 claim.

21 Plaintiffs retort that their allegation that defendants told plaintiffs' insureds that plaintiffs and 22 their authorized insurance agencies "were 'frauds and/or thieves' is a defamatory statement that is 23 not aimed at the goods and services of the business" (doc. # 30, 17:20-24), and therefore is not a 24 claim for business disparagement.

 26 <sup>1</sup>First, defendants argue that plaintiffs' trade libel claim pleaded the elements of a defamation per se claim. The 27 fact that plaintiffs originally labeled the claim as trade libel instead of defamation per se is not relevant to the discussion 28 because plaintiffs concede the claim should have been labeled defamation per se, and "a complaint need not identify the statutory or constitutional source of the claim raised in order to survive a motion to dismiss." Alvarez v. Hill, 518 F.3d 1152, 1157 (9th Cir. 2008).

1           The Supreme Court of Nevada has differentiated between defamation per se and business
2   disparagement. Clark Cty. Sch. Dist. v. Virtual Educ. Software, Inc., 213 P.3d 496, 504 (Nev. 2009).
3   Statements accusing an individual of personal misconduct in his or her business or attacking the 4   individual's business reputation may be brought as an action for defamation per se. Id. However,
5   if the statements are directed towards the quality of the individual's product or services, the claim 6   is one for business disparagement. Id.

7           In Virtual Educ., the Clark County School District ("CCSD") reviewed several of Virtual 8   Education's courses because of concerns about their academic rigor. Id. at 500. CCSD decided the 9   courses did not meet its standards, and in a letter sent to Virtual Education's vice president, stated 10   that "some of the courses can be completed in three to five hours," "tests can be successfully passed 11   without reading the material," that there is "no safeguard to determine that the candidate is the one 12   who actually takes the tests," and the courses did "not require the analysis, synthesis and application 13   levels usually required for graduate coursework." Id. These statements attacked a product the 14   business offered, and the Nevada Supreme Court held that business disparagement was the 15   appropriate claim. Id. at 504.

16           Similarly, in Aegis Council, LLC v. Maldonado, a business disparagement claim was found 17   where defendants allegedly posted on RipoffReport.com that a service the plaintiff offered was a "tax 18   avoidance scam." 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 36572, at *1 (D. Nev. Mar. 30, 2011). This statement was 19   directed at the service offered.

20           Here, this case is distinguished from Virtual Educ. and Aegis because the alleged statements
21   do not attack plaintiffs' goods or services. Unlike in Virtual Educ., plaintiffs aren't alleging 22   defendants made statements that attacked a product they offered. The allegation that the defendants 23   called plaintiffs "frauds and/or thieves" is not an attack on a product, but an attack on individual 24   businesses' reputations and their employees' reputations.

25           This case is also dissimilar from Aegis Council, because here the alleged statements are not 26   calling plaintiffs' service a "scam"; instead, the statements are referring specifically to plaintiffs as 27   "frauds and/or thieves." These statements implicate an attack on individuals' reputations and 28

1 individuals' lack of fitness for trade, business, or profession—not an attack on a product or service.
2 Thus, defamation per se is the appropriate claim here.

3 While the Nevada Supreme Court has not “clearly stated whether a corporation or other 4 business entity can proceed on a theory of defamation per se where communications concern the 5 business's product or injure the business's reputation,” Virtual Educ., 213 P.3d at 504, this court
6 anticipates that the Nevada Supreme Court would find this claim viable here.<sup>2</sup>

7 Additionally, the court acknowledges that a negligence per se claim only requires allegations 8 of negligence and presumed damages; however, plaintiff is “the master of the complaint,” Holmes
9 Grp., Inc. v. Vornado Air Circulation Sys., Inc., 122 S. Ct. 1889, 1894 (2002); and here plaintiffs 10 have sufficiently alleged a negligence per se claim.

11 IV. Conclusion

12 Accordingly,

13 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that defendants Estrella
14 Insurance Service, Inc. et al.'s motion to dismiss (doc. # 27) be, and the same hereby is, DENIED.
